COLLECTIVE WORSHIP - A STATEMENT OF POLICY

The Education Reform Act of 1988 requires all schools in Wales to devise their own collective worship policy in line with national and county guidelines and to outline the way in which the school intends to present collective worship to its pupils. It is a statutory requirement of the Act and one which demands a policy statement in the way all subjects of the National Curriculum do and in fact should be viewed as an integral part of our broadly based curriculum. The following is a brief outline of the main legislative requirements that apply to our school and it is with these in mind that our policy statement is devised.

1. The word assembly is never used in the Act; instead collective worship which, together with R.E., is seen as part of the school curriculum.
2. The main organisational requirements are that:
 - a) collective worship must be daily for all registered pupils;
 - b) it can be at any time of the school day;
 - c) it can be in whatever grouping the school wishes;
 - d) as a rule it must take place on the school premises. Any acts of collective worship off the school premises must be in addition to the statutory daily act of collective worship.

3. The clauses relating to style and content state that:
 - a) the majority of acts of collective worship each term should be “wholly or mainly of a broadly Christian character” -that is reflecting the “broad traditions of Christian belief” - but they should be non-denominational;
 - b) regard must be taken of the pupils ages, aptitudes and family backgrounds;
 - c) if a school believes that “wholly or mainly of a broadly Christian character” is inappropriate, it can apply to its local SACRE (Standing Advisory Council for Religious Education) to have that clause lifted or modified for the whole school or for a class or description of pupils within the school. In making such a request to the SACRE, the headteacher must consult with the governors who might also choose to seek the views of parents.
4. Parents retain the right to withdraw their children. Teachers’ rights are also safeguarded.
5. It is the duty of the headteacher -after consulting with the governing body - to see that these arrangements are carried out.

These requirements, in every aspect are prescriptive and strengthened by their position in terms of the law and so must be adhered to strictly. Our school also has a moral responsibility to its pupils to engage children daily in a thoughtful act of collective worship whilst respecting the integrity of all those who participate. It is with this in mind that our policy must be clear, reflecting the aims and objectives of collective worship, the character of our school and the ways in which these can best be put into practice.

In response to this, the Local Education Authority suggests three guiding principles upon which any policy on collective worship should be founded. These have implications for both the content and the style of delivery to the children. These are:

1. that collective worship should be INCLUSIVE;
2. that collective worship should be SPIRITUAL;
3. that collective worship should be EDUCATIONAL.

Aims and Objectives

The following aims and objectives are set within the context of the individuality of our pupils and their learning difficulties.

1. Collective worship should aim to promote the spiritual development of each pupil in a sensitive and careful manner.
2. To enrich pupils’ experiences and to enable them to be tolerant of other people’s viewpoints, beliefs and customs.
3. An opportunity to experience worship or to be brought to the threshold of worship.
4. To consider that worship is relevant and meaningful.
5. To create an atmosphere appropriate for silent contemplation and to respond personally and positively.
6. To appreciate the use of symbols and language in worship.
7. To give pupils an opportunity to investigate their own religious viewpoints in relation to others by offering them new experiences.

8. To attempt to elicit a personal response to ultimate questions and therefore to raise their spiritual consciousness.
9. To promote a personal search for the Truth and the meaning of life.
10. To develop a sense of values within the school, and the local community and the world at large.

Organisation of Collective Worship

All the pupils are involved in collective worship daily. To best meet the requirements of the Education Reform Act and to fulfil the aims and objectives for collective worship, the children participate as members of different organisational groups.

Upper / Lower School / Satellites -

The children participating in collective worship, being part of a school community is fundamental to the child's understanding of worship and the development of a sense of values within the school, and children's understanding of their rights inline with the UNCRC. These are important occasions and ones when parents and members of the local community may be involved. Collective Worship takes place in large and small groups. When pupils participate in Collective Worship in the Classroom - the children participate in collective worship with other members of their class. The style of presentation can be pupil centred allowing each child to participate as fully as they wish in a way which is more personal to them.

Planning and Content

The content of the collective worship is based on the development of a theme throughout the week. These themes are based on the suggestions provided by the Local Education Authority (see Appendix A) and encompass both Christianity and the other major religions represented in Wales. Themes may also reflect the celebration of those festivals throughout the year which are important to individual children and to the development of a community ethos within the school.

The planning is carried out as upper/lower school, and individual class. The development of the theme is outlined, as well as a bank of suggestions for the collective worship within the classroom (Appendix B).

Children attending Y Porth Satellite and Tasker Milward Satellite will also have the opportunity if appropriate to attend collective worship with mainstream peers.

It is intended that the content will follow a two-year cycle of themes.

At times throughout the school year the collective worship will be presented by the children themselves reflecting a theme of their choice, usually connected with the work they are undertaking in the classroom. It may also be connected with a special time of the year - Harvest Festival, Christmas and St. David's day - these services often supported by a representative from one of our local churches.

A local minister takes collective worship in our school once a month, other local ministers may speak at special assemblies throughout the year.

Organisation of Collective Worship

The daily format of collective worship can vary but might be based on the following structure:-

- Music
- Song
- Main content (story, reading, talk, role play)
- Prayers

Announcements and Birthdays may follow as part of the assembly but not as collective worship.

Planning, Recording, Evaluating

It is important that acts of collective worship are carefully planned in line with all other aspects and subjects of the curriculum to ensure:

- A balance in content and approach
- Relevance to the pupils' interests and needs
- An appropriateness to their aptitudes and abilities

The school's plans for daily collective worship follow a two year cycle and can be found in Appendix C.

Role of Governing Body

Governing Bodies are accountable in terms of ensuring that local needs are met in relation to the provision of collective worship.

Visiting Providers for Collective Worship

Once a month a visiting provider leads collective worship.

APPENDIX A

COLLECTIVE WORSHIP

THREE GUIDING PRINCIPLES

- i) Collective worship should be INCLUSIVE.
- ii) Collective worship should be SPIRITUAL.
- iii) Collective worship should be EDUCATIONAL.

COLLECTIVE WORSHIP SHOULD BE INCLUSIVE

Implications (positively expressed):

- * Collective worship should be pupil-centred and related to pupils' own experiences.
- * Collective worship should acknowledge diversity and affirm each pupil's (and teacher's) own life-stance, whether it be religious or not.
- * Collective worship should involve pupils as active participants where possible.
- * Collective worship should be shaped to the particular needs of pupils in individual schools. Commitment to this principle should encourage diversity of practice.
- * Collective worship should foster a sense of community within each school: a sense of shared values, identity, perception, outlook and purpose.

Implications (negatively expressed):

- * Collective worship should not simply be watered-down versions of worship in adult faith communities. (This is not to say that schools should not draw upon the wide variety of worship practices within faith communities to enrich their own collective worship.)
- * Pupils (and teachers) should not simply mouth faith statements which they do not understand or to which they do not themselves adhere.
- * Pupils (and teachers) should not be placed in positions where they are made to feel uneasy, or less than honest, or where their personal integrity is not respected.
- * If collective worship is inclusive there should be no need for the right of withdrawal to be exercised.

COLLECTIVE WORSHIP SHOULD BE SPIRITUAL

Implications (positively expressed):

- * Collective worship should provide a breathing space in the busy whirl of school activity: a time to gather, to be still and to reflect in an atmosphere of peace and tranquillity: a time to refresh the spirit.
- * Collective worship should be a 'special' time with a distinctively spiritual atmosphere, one that is conducive to worship. The use of appropriate background music will help to create such an ambience, and the setting for collective worship should be made as attractive as possible. Often it will help if there is a visual focus for those present.
- * The pupils attending collective worship should feel calm and relaxed. Above all, they should be comfortable. Consideration should also be given to the manner in which pupils enter and leave.
- * Collective worship should 'develop the spirit' through a variety of words, music and images, and should sensitise children to the spiritual dimension of life. Collective worship should allow pupils to reflect upon spiritual writings, music and works of art. The world's great religions are obvious repositories of profound spiritual insights, and material derived from the Christian traditions will help to ensure the Christian character of most of the worship.
- * Collective worship should provide opportunities for pupils to participate in a variety of spiritual activities, such as worship, singing, dancing and drama. Sharing food and drink, prayer, quiet contemplation and meditation. These activities should always be undertaken with care and sensitivity, and it is a legal requirement that they should be appropriate to the pupils' ages, aptitudes and family background. It is also mandatory that such activities, when constituting worship that is wholly or mainly of a broadly Christian character, should not be distinctive of any particular Christian denomination.
- * Collective worship should provide opportunities and space for individual reflection and a variety of individual responses, including worship. Often this will be facilitated by the use of a purposeful silence.
- * Collective worship must always provide an opportunity for pupils to participate.
- * Collective worship should be separated from day to day school announcements.

Implications (negatively expressed):

- * Anything that may disturb the spiritual atmosphere engendered in collective worship, such as announcements, reprimands or the clatter from kitchens, would be unacceptable.
- * Collective worship should not simply consist of stories with a moral!

COLLECTIVE WORSHIP SHOULD BE EDUCATIONAL

Implications (positively expressed):

- * Collective worship should be governed by the same educational criteria that apply to any other educational activity. Collective worship should be learning experiences of real quality, related to the pupils' own experiences. They should be properly prepared, executed and evaluated. Time should be found to enable proper planning to take place and collective worship should be appropriately resourced.
- * Collective worship should be explicitly related to other curricular activity. Collective worship will naturally complement some of the work done in R.E. , providing insight into the nature and practice of worship.
- * Collective worship should provide schools with opportunities to reflect on their own educational purpose and to celebrate a range of educational achievements (not simply academic and sporting success!).
- * The aims of collective worship should be educational and consistent with the educational aims and objectives of the school. Indeed, acts of worship provide a useful means of realising many of the educational aims of the school.

Implications (negatively expressed):

- * There is no place in collective worship for evangelism and indoctrination, both of which seek to bring pupils to a particular conviction and to discourage questioning. These are anti-educational.

Guidance for Visiting Providers

The two following organisations give guidance on the involvement of visiting providers in school. Schools may wish to use this guidance to discuss the providers' involvement in collective worship

Professional Council for Religious Education

The Professional Council for Religious Education is the subject teacher association for teachers of R.E. The following code of conduct is taken from their booklet "Religious Believers Visiting Schools: Guidance and a Code of Conduct".

The code of Conduct

Religious visitors taking part in the life of a school should:

- Be willing to share their own experiences, beliefs and insights, but avoid (1) criticising the experience and insights of others and (2) imposing their views upon pupils in any way;
- Be familiar with the school's aims, ethos and policies. And plan their involvement in the light of the aims and curriculum at the school;
- Seek to use engaging teaching and learning methods which involve the pupils actively, and to communicate at appropriate levels for the age group(s) concerned;
- Be willing to respect and value the faith of children and young people when it is different to their own;
- Develop ways of speaking to children which communicate their open approach, avoiding any hidden agenda to convert young people.

This question will help visitors to reflect on their approach

If a member of another religion visited my child's school and contributed in the same way that I have done, would I, as a parent, be happy with the education given?

The Schools Ministry Network

The Schools Ministry Network has devised the following principles and practice. The schools Ministry Network is a voluntary association of Christian organisation and individuals working with schools.

In joining the network members commit themselves to its objectives, principles and practice. Membership does not imply that any individual has undergone any particular training or is accredited in any other way. Providers join the Schools Ministry Network on the recommendation of someone already working with the Network.

These principles also provide sound exemplars for providers working outside the Network

Principles and Practice

- (i) We recognise schools to be places of Education and seek to work with them in appropriate ways.
- (ii) We believe that Christians have a responsibility to make a positive contribution to the whole school community
- (iii) We seek to assist pupils to evaluate Christianity as a way of life, by, for example:
 - a) Helping them to understand basic Christian beliefs;
 - b) Sharing the relevance of Christianity to different areas of life
 - c) Assisting pupils in forming and/or clarifying personal values
 - d) Supporting ongoing work in Schools;
 - e) Giving pupils a positive experience of meeting Christians in school;
 - f) Bringing personal and professional support for Christian teachers
- (iv) We recognise the important of strategic, long term approach to ministry in the school community
- (v) We recognise the important of the local Church in outreach and discipleship
- (vi) We seek to work in conjunction with, and mindful of, the school staff not in isolation
- (vii) We seek to co-operate with other Christians in the school community
- (viii) We seek to identify and make contact with Christians already working in school before beginning something new
- (ix) We will show respect for school administration, staff and parents, and never knowingly undermine them
- (x) We will seek to teach Christian principles, while not promoting denominations.
